Today's X-ray setup costs more than the machine

Small clinics

Call an outside technician for every X-ray and pay ₹150–200 a time. The patient waits, and the revenue walks out of the door.

New hospitals

A fixed unit needs a dedicated, lead-lined room, heavy electricals and floor space that could earn as a consultation room.

ICU & wards

Critical, post-op and fracture patients get shifted to the X-ray room. That's risky, slow and costly in staff time.

What it images: an honest radiology view

Where it shines

- Chest, bedside and screening
- Hand, wrist, elbow, shoulder
- Foot, ankle, knee, leg
- Skull and cervical spine
- Paediatric patients

Plan with your radiologist

- Lumbar spine (lateral view)
- Pelvis & hip in heavy adults
- Abdomen in large patients

With a 70 kV / 6 mA maximum, these views can need a higher-output fixed unit. Hospitals use KA6 alongside it; clinics doing mainly chest and limb work can rely on KA6 alone.

The brochure lists chest, skull, spine, abdomen, upper and lower extremity. Image quality depends on patient size and technique.
